VOLUNTARY WAGE REDUCTION

A voluntary reduction of an additional 10% in their salaries, effective Sept. 1, was made Wednesday by executives of the Boston and Maine Railroad. This, with a similar voluntary reduction which was effective Jan. 1, constitutes a 20% reduction in salaries of Boston and Maine executives this year.

30,000 "FORGOTTEN" VOTERS

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—The Maine vote is gaining at the rate of about 1000 a year. The vote in 1928 was about 262,000, the voters in 1932 should number about 266,000. Of these 236,000, or less, voted Sept. 12. Watch out for that 30,000. They may vote in November. They did in 1928. Selaht!
In 1928, 15,606 Democrats and 31,410 Republicans voted in November who did not vote in September; also 1008 Socialists. A total of 48,024.

AT UNION FAIR

The most famous of female athletes Marie Corelli, and her company of physical culturists will be seen at North Knox Fair in an artistic routine of athletics that will prove a pleasant surprise to the spectators. As a lighter of heavy weights, Miss Corelli has no equal among the members of her own sex and few among the opposite sex.

WERE OLD FRIENDS

Col. O. N. Blackington Writes of the Late Major C. B. Greenhalgh To Daughter

An issue of this paper some weeks ago carried a communication from Col. Oliver N. Blackington, dealing with the embarkation of the Fourth Maine Regiment. Col. Blackington, noting the discussion upon the point of the wharf from which that embarkation took place, emphatically settled the matter, by testifying that being among the number who took part, he was able to state that it was Atlantic wharf and not the Commercial, as some had claimed.

An interesting incident in connection with this letter falls to be recorded. Miss Hope Greenhalgh, noting the statement therein that Col. Blackington enlisted in Co. C of the 4th Maine, and recalling that that was the company in which her father, the late Major Charles B. Greenhalgh, enlisted, took occasion to write Col. Blackington, alluding to that fact. The veteran officer was quick to make response, and a pleasant exchange of letters resulted. As a testimonial to the character and martial attainments of another Rockland officer of the 4th Maine, Col. Blackington's letter is with permission here printed:

Lime Rock, Conn.

My dear Miss Greenhalgh:—In all of the hundred communications that I have received in the last three months yours has given me the most satisfaction and pleasure. Why, your father was my very, very best and dearest friend, the man I always loved and respected and always shall. To him and his efforts I owe all my success in my military career. He took me, a country boy just off the farm, and made me (see enclosure) what a soldier can be proud of. I could, were I a writer, fill many sheets telling of his good works, his wonderful knowledge of military tactics. As an instructor I never saw his equal, and I have seen many. You can never realize how much time he spent on my education in tactics. Oh, but I did miss him so much when he resigned—but I did not blame him. He should have been made Lieutenant Colonel, for he was better qualified for that position than anyone in the regiment.

He had never spoken of his family, and I did not know of you, but I am so glad you have made yourself known and I hope I can be counted amongst your other friends. Sincerely your friend, God bless you.
O. N. Blackington
[The "enclosure" alluded to is the story of Col. Blackington's brilliant war career, as told no long time ago in a Waterbury (Conn.) paper, the details of which have already been printed in The Courier-Gazette.]

TWO HUGE EXHIBITS

Which Will Be Made By Maine At The Springfield Exposition

Citizens of many states will learn of Maine's agricultural and recreational advantages through two huge exhibits, sponsored by the State agricultural department and the State fish and game department, which will feature the displays in the Maine building at the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, Mass. The Exposition will open Sunday.

The agricultural department exhibit will occupy the entire right side of the building, a space 135x15 feet. It will illustrate, in a graphic and interesting manner, the progress of the dairy industry in Maine from pioneer days to the present. Also through relief map replicas, it will picture Maine's mountain and lake country and typical boys' and girls' camps and a sporting camp.

A pond in which a pair of beavers will demonstrate their industrious habits, another pond in which there will be many large trout, a real tumbling, splashing waterfall and brook and a realistic reproduction of a rugged mountain range will comprise the fish and game department exhibit. This display will occupy a space 75x15 feet. In the center there will be a birch bark lean-to where literature and information pertaining to the State's hunting and fishing and recreational attractions will be available.

Commissioner Washburn will be in charge of the personnel at the agricultural department exhibit. Assistant him there will be D. S. Clement, certified potato inspector; E. F. Chipatrick, dairy inspector; Clinton Newdick, plant industry inspector; C. M. White, chief of the division of markets; C. P. Osgood, dairy inspector; Ira Boynton, inspector and P. H. Libby, mechanic.

At the fish and game department exhibit there will be Vico C. Isola, executive secretary of the Maine Development Commission; Miss Barbara Caldwell, assistant executive secretary of the Commission; Mrs. Gertrude Alexander of the Fish and Game Department and Mrs. Arthur W. Bell of the Maine Publicity Bureau.

A Handsome Addition to Park Street

The Rockland Business College Under Guidance of Mrs. Lena K. Sargent, Is Now Occupying Its Fine New Home At 51 Park Street. This Is One of the Best Commercial School Plants in Maine.

The new home of the Rockland Business College as pictured above is coming in for many compliments these days. It is located in the Park street side of the Lewis and Clark Co. building, corner of High street. The main room is 60 by 30 feet with ideal lighting afforded by all glass fronts on the street sides. Excellent ventilation is secured by a new system just completed.

Much new equipment has been added to the school including 10 regulation office desks for the stenography department, purchased through Burpee Furniture Co. All the remaining desks and tables have been refinished with linoleum tops. The eastern section is devoted to accounting and assembly. The western end to stenography and other courses. The office of the principal, Mrs. Lena K. Sargent, occupies the middle rear section giving oversight of the whole school. Adjoining it is a comfortable rest room with all conveniences. The decorative screens in the large windows were made by C. B. Emery.

The Rockland Business College has been conducted for several years by Mrs. Sargent with a steadily growing reputation for excellence. Fine records have been made everywhere by its graduates. The school moved to its present quarters from the top floor of the Senter Crane Company building. Its text books, courses and instruction are all standard. Sessions are held daily 8 to 1 o'clock with intermission at 11. The evening school, starting Oct. 4, is held Tuesdays and Thursdays from 7 to 9. The classroom is entirely separated from the rear of the structure which is occupied by the Buick agency and Barrett R. Cotton automotive repair shop.

AFTERMATH OF ELECTION

Conditions Favor Election Of Union Boy As Speaker—
Brann Has Few Appointments

BURROWS TO INSPECT
Jerome C. Burrows, who was defeated for county attorney on the face of unofficial returns, has decided to ask for an inspection of the ballots in response to the widespread suggestions based upon statements which have come from certain communities. The revised figures in Ward 4 left County Attorney Ensign Otis with an apparent margin of 14 votes.

One result of the political overturn in Maine is the probable election of Franz U. Burkett as the next speaker of the House of Representatives. Mr. Burkett is a Union boy, and recently served in the House with his father, Fred E. Burkett of Union. There have been four candidates for the speakership, but according to the Portland newspapers, Mr. Burkett's election is almost a foregone conclusion. Which, of course, makes happy reading here in Knox County.

He still has two announced opponents, Representative Ralph W. Farris, Augusta, and Representative Roy L. Fernald, Winterport. Mr. Farris was regarded as a most serious contender in the event. Mr. Allen had remained in the field but that elimination is expected to work to his detriment to the extent it has aided Mr. Burkett. In addition, Representative Burkett's friends, after surveying the field of remaining Republicans throughout the State, contend that Mr. Burkett suffered far less in the loss of supporters than his Farris as a result of Democrats supplanting Republicans. Representative Fernald has never been regarded as an important figure in the contest.

The Legislature will be organized as usual by Republicans because of the overwhelming majorities in both branches. This means that Republican nominations are equivalent to elections, at least insofar as strictly legislative offices are concerned. If Representative Burkett is elected to the Speakership it probably will greatly benefit Cumberland and York Counties in the apportioning of committee appointments. Cumberland and York were outstanding Republican bulwarks in the Statewide reversals of Monday's election and this fact of itself is certain to give the two western counties a decided influence in shaping legislative affairs next winter.

As to the Democratic influence in the next Legislature it will be of great importance. The House, according to latest returns from the many class contests, will have about 94 Republicans to 57 Democrats. This means that the Democrats will hold a real balance of power because the Republicans will lack a two-thirds margin in the event of a real crisis. Ordinary legislation requires only majority votes but if some Republican legislation should meet with a veto at the hands of the Democratic governor the majority party would have to win supporters in the minor-

In Lincoln County
Lincoln County Republicans elected all of their candidates except county attorney by majorities ranging from 28, for a representative candidate, to 1425 for Sheriff Greenleaf. The list follows: State senator, Maude Clark Gay, Waldoboro; judge of probate, John W. Brackett, Boothbay Harbor; clerk of courts, Clarence A. Richards, Damascott; sheriff, Arthur R. Greenleaf, Boothbay Harbor; county attorney, Bradford C. Redonnet, Wiscasset; county commissioner, Lincoln M. Harris, Boothbay Harbor; representatives to legislature, Hervey C. Bailey, Whitefield; Elton H. Lewis, Boothbay; and F. Burton Haggott, Wiscasset.

"No Excuses"—Martin
In his first public statement since the State election Monday, Burleigh Martin, defeated Republican gubernatorial candidate said: "I have not a single excuse, alibi, or explanation to offer. The Associated Press returns indicate the election of Mr. Brann, to whom I wrote a letter of congratulation Tuesday. Mrs. Martin and myself will ever be mindful of the courtesies extended to us during the past months in all sections of Maine by men and women irrespective of party affiliations and I wish to express my gratitude to those who so loyally and generously supported me."

As Burrows Sees It
The Democratic victory in Maine was looked upon by Executive Council Lewis O. Burrows of New Portland, who ran second to Burleigh Martin in the Republican primaries for Governor, "as a setting of the stage for a Republican victory two years from now."

He said he believed Republicans would look upon this defeat as proof "that they had better work together in the future and perfect an active organization and keep it active." It was inferred from his conversation that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for governor again in 1934. He ran a close second to Martin in this year's primaries in which there were three other Republican candidates.

A BIG FIVE CHALLENGE

To Mealey's All Stars For Game In Rockland Next Week—
Sunday's Contest At 'Keag

While the local baseball season has ended, so far as the leagues are concerned there are still one or two matters to be settled.

One is the expected challenge issued to Mealey's All Stars by the Big Five All Stars, and the outcome should go a long way to deciding the respective merits of the two leagues. The Big Five boys have long felt that the Knox County Twilight League had nothing on their organization, and in this manner they today challenge the Mealey outfit to a game next Tuesday night or Thursday night.

The challenge is one that cannot be lightly disregarded for the Big Five League has some fine players, and is fully entitled to demand satisfaction. Incidentally it would give many fans their first opportunity to see the Big Five in action. Should it not be possible to get the Mealey All Stars together again this season, let Rockland accept the challenge—which has the full endorsement of this paper.

Meantime on Sunday the all-star Big Five team selected by Manager Hopkins will play another Big Five All-Star team made up thus:

Catcher, Putnam, "Keag; pitcher, W. Makinen, "Keag; 1b, G. Baum, "Keag; 2b, Martin, Kickapoo; 3b, Sleeper, "Keag; ss, Auld, Kickapoo; 1c, Carter, Whitehead; cf, Am. Makinen, "Keag; rf, S. Jackson, "Keag; extras, Hopkins, "Keag; Polan, Kickapoo; and Carr, Spruce Head.

The game will take place at the "Keag.

Forget not that no fellow-being yet May fall so low but love may lift his head; Even the cheek of shame with tears is wet.
If something good be said.
No generous heart may vainly turn aside In ways of sympathy; no soul so dead But may awaken strong as glorified.

DISCUSSING A LAW

In another column appears a communication from a St. George resident relative to the disfranchisement of voters who have received assistance from the town, and it is entitled to the consideration of every careful reader, notwithstanding the signer's implication that class legislation in the recent election has been invoked. The matter was made an issue by the Democrats in Lewiston and doubtless had influence in shaping that party's wave which swept over Androscoggin County. It was useless to point out that the law for a century and more has been in vogue in Maine, as well as in numerous other States. In our own city, each time the Registration Board is in session, there is submitted to it by the poor department a so-called pauper list. That the law here could not have been invoked against the unemployed who had been forced to seek assistance, is evident from the fact that less than two-score names were stricken from the local voting list this month, although assistance has been given to several hundred persons.

If ever there was a psychological moment when the moratorium should be resorted to, this would seem to be the instance. Some men and some women, who have always been highly respected citizens, cheerfully paying their portion of the municipal tax, have suddenly found themselves bereft of their usual income, with nothing in the bank to provide against the proverbial rainy day. Not the so-called laboring man alone, but the person often referred to as belonging to the white-collar class. It is bad enough for them to be deprived of their means of subsistence, and to be harried by thought of the future, without losing the right of franchise through no fault of their own. Granted that there is such a law, and like many laws it is susceptible to injustice, there should be some form of amendment possible to it that shall serve to meet the extraordinary conditions with which the world is now striving to deal.

We do not think our correspondent's appeal to class furnishes a proper solution of the problem.

ANALYZING THE VOTE

The dull atmosphere of vagueness that surrounded the recent election was apparent whichever way you turned. One could scarcely enter into conversation without encountering evidence of the fact. Arthur Staples quotes a number of these encounters that illustrate a general condition, which explains why even the shrewdest of forecasters found it difficult to predict what was going to take place when folks got to the ballot-box.

One of the yarns told around in a certain sea-shore county about Burleigh Martin (so Arthur writes) was that he was a competent drunkard and that he voted against the lobster tariff in Congress. One is as true as the other. One earnest voter in Lincoln County told us that he was going to scratch Wallace White's name off the ticket. "I shall not vote for White," said he, "because he went for us." "How," said we, "Well," said he, "I can't just remember what it was but it was something." Our advice to him was not to vote for Gene Toomey for Congress. "He'll make 'em stand around," said he. "Do you suppose," asked an anxious lady of a friend of ours in a certain Maine county, "that they will have liquor selling back by Christmas, if the Democrats get in? I hope not," added she. "It is hard times enough in my family at present."

CHICAGO'S QUICK TAXIS

While Your Head Is Turned They're Off For Another Passenger

Somebody was joshing Glenn Lawrence over his business associate Roy E. Estes losing his car to a hitchhiker whom he had befriended in Chicago.

"Well, that's what happens in Chicago," said Glenn. "I went out there awhile ago to a business convention. I knew the name of the building where it was to be held, and took a taxi there. When I got out I handed the driver a five dollar bill and turned my head to look for the sign on the building. Then I turned back for my change and saw the taxi driving off with it, my five dollars and all. Everything moves quick in Chicago."

There are occasions when strong language is as necessary as strong medicine.—Edward H. Doyle.

At The High School

(By Elizabeth Walker)

Irene Billado is secretary to Mr. Blaisdell this week.

The school year began auspiciously Tuesday, with Carol Gardner opening the assembly and Shirley Barbour conducting the program. Mr. Bowden spoke briefly and humorously. Miss Coughlin then gave us a timely discourse, stressing the importance of "knowing what to do next, and preparing to do it." The assembly was brought to a close by Principal Blaisdell, with a few words to the freshmen and other new students, introducing them to their new environment.

We are missing several very popular teachers of last year. Mrs. Hart has resigned, and Mr. and Mrs. Whittemore are located in Guilford. Mr. Whittemore is teaching in both Guilford and Dover-Foxcroft. However, we find Mr. Stewart a pleasant and capable teacher of mathematics, and Miss Tower, a veteran of one year, is taking on Mrs. Whittemore's work.

The first day of school introduced a promising army, only the usual percentage of which became lost, strayed or stolen.

The first Junior High assembly was directed by 8-3, David Curtis and Reginald McLaughlin conducting the opening exercises. Miss Cochran spoke concerning the award of the Sons of the American Revolution, given at the end of the eighth grade year to the pupil who best exemplifies the principles of good citizenship as outlined by the national society of the S.A.R. The award, won last year by Carl Spear, is an attractive bronze medal. Miss Cochran then presented Miss Hagar with the certificate won by the Girls' Glee Club in the State High School vocal contest. This certificate is given by the National Bureau for the advancement of music to the organization first place in the vocal contest. The assembly closed with singing by the school.

Football is under way again. Coach Olson is hard at work rounding into shape a team to represent the school this fall. As yet there has been no first team selected. The line was hit hard by graduation, leaving only Crockett, Sheppard and Doyle.

The Freshman reception, given by the Seniors, was held last Friday night.

Mrs. Carrillo hopes to form two new elective English classes from volunteer students. The first will give instruction in argument and debate, and the second, in original composition and journalism. Each will meet twice a week and the students will receive school credit.

The three upper classes called class meetings Wednesday night, the freshmen holding theirs the following day. These officers were chosen:

Senior—President, Shirley Barbour; vice president, Nicholas Pellicani; secretary, Mildred Sweeney; treasurer, Bernadette Snow; Student Council members, Stanley Gay and Mary Ginn.

Junior—President, Ernest Doyle; vice president, Charles Ellis; secretary, Hervey Allen; treasurer, Vernard Crockett; Student Council members, Norman Stanley and Ruth Donohue.

Sophomore—President, Howard Crockett; vice president, Rose Flanagan; secretary and treasurer, Gertrude Heal; Student Council members, Rose Flanagan and Edward Griffin.

STRAND THEATRE

That the romantic troubles of young love during the first year are mostly fleeting is the dramatic thesis of the latest Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell comedy drama, "The First Year," coming Monday and Tuesday. Adapted from the Frank Craven stage play of the same name, it presents Janet and Charlie as two entirely understandable youngsters of the present day.

PARK THEATRE

It is in line with Barbara Stanwyck's modesty that she never told anyone she could sing. It never occurred to her that anyone could be interested in knowing. Director William Wellman discovered it only after he tried to get several singers to double for her in her current production of "The Purchase Price," coming Monday and Tuesday.

OWL'S HEAD

Capt. Albert Wilbur of the Salvation Army will conduct the services Sunday at 3 o'clock at the chapel. All are invited.

Mrs. Ella Hare was the fortunate one to receive the quilt made by Grandama Jewers who is 93 years old, and it is the 95th quilt she has made in bed, to which she has been confined for 13 years.

LONG COVE

At St. George's Church (Episcopal) Rev. E. O. Kenyon, pastor, tomorrow's services will be church school at 2.30 and evening sermon at 8 o'clock. Everyone is welcome.

You can't be the first to fly anywhere nowadays.—Captain J. A. Molison.

BIG FIVE "ALLS"

Capt. Drinkwater Wonders At Certain Omissions By Other Pickers

To the Sports Editor:

Please allow me space in your sports column to comment upon the Big Five All-Star selection as submitted by Managers Mosher and Hopkins.

After watching the games in the Big Five League this season, I am at a loss to see how Messrs. Mosher and Hopkins could select an "all star team," and overlook such ball players as Auld, Rogall, Carter and V. Carr. These players have been the keystone of their teams, know baseball, are good hitters and play heads-up ball at all times.

You can't win ball games with your hitters and best all-round players on the bench, so let's put this team on the field.

Catcher—Collins, Rockville. Unanimous choice for catcher. Ready player, always in the game, fine hitter, right temperament for a catcher.

Pitcher—Starr, Rockville. Good hitter and catcher, would be first choice if he could keep his head under fire.

Pitcher—Carter, Kickapoo. Heady, plenty of speed, good curves, nice change of pace, fast hitting and fielding pitcher in league.
Pitcher—V. Carr, Spruce Head. Inexperienced, but has plenty of speed, good curves. Watch this boy of 16 next season.

Pitcher—Hunt, Dragons. Good fielder and hitter. Easily irritated. Pitches good ball, but needs another season.

First base—Auld, Kickapoo. Versatile, keystone to any ball team.
Second base—Seavey, Spruce Head. Best infielder in league, plays head-up ball, knows the game. Only fair hitter.

Third base—Hinckley, Dragons. Were it not that a single, Best in league; plays position well, good hitter and good sport, even temperament and will meet you better than halfway.

Shortstop—Gatti, South Thomaston. Knows the game, good hitter and fielder, plays heads-up ball.

Left field—Rogall, Kickapoo. Good throwing arm, always where to relay ball. Heady, best pinch hitter in league. Plays any position well.

Center field—Folan, Kickapoo. Played shortstop all season. Position is outfield, good arm and knows the game, hits well, fast on bases.

Right field—Valenta, Dragons. Good outfielder and hitter. Is in the game every minute, plays heads-up ball. Covers a lot of ground.

Utility infield—Stewart, Carter. Utility outfield—L. Drinkwater, Snow, Ladd.

Let's go, Big Five managers. The best is what we are after.
E. B. Drinkwater, Kickapoo C. G.

CORRECTING A LETTER

Whose Substitution Reversed the Sense of the Paragraph

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—Were it not that a single typographical error, by substituting the letter P for N, gave a different meaning than was intended, it would be needless for me to call attention to the same in the Isle au Haut article in your Sept. 13 issue. In the second paragraph where it reads "For that Pioneer Seth Webb, the 'For' should read Nor." E. Lake Noyes, M. D. Stonington, Me.

IN THE CHURCHES

SERMONETTE

Empty Pews Follow Empty Preaching

Today the foes of the church are not so serious without as within. The decline in attendance of our great churches is not due to the fact that they are located in the cities, but that they are not reaching the citizens within those centers. It is due to a weakness within the church itself. They are not carrying out their mission "that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." Note the importance of the last three words. It meant to the Jews then precisely what it should mean to the Christian of today, to commence right where they were, at home first, then elsewhere. Whenever you find a church of any faith that attempts to soften that great commission you find a weak and dying congregation.

Christ said nothing about preaching pacifism. Our pulpits are full of it. He made no apology for his gospel, nor did he attempt to reconcile it with passing phases of science, or of conforming it to the latest dictum of evolution. Science must conform to the truth or it will not be science; for it is but an expression of truth. Christ declared the truth, as he was, he was the truth. "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost. Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." A church or minister will not fail to interest men, that remembers this command.

William A. Holman.

At St. Peter's Church (Episcopal) Rev. E. O. Kenyon, rector, the services for tomorrow will be appropriate for the seventh Sunday after Trinity: Holy communion at 7.30; church school at 9.30; choral eucharist and sermon at 10.30; adoration at 7.30 p. m.

At First Church of Christ, Scientist, corner of Cedar and Brewster streets, Sunday services are at 10.30 and the subject of the lesson sermon tomorrow will be "Matter." Sunday School is at 11.45. Wednesday evening testimony meeting is at 7.30. The reading room is located at 400 Main street, and is open week days from 2 until 5 p. m.

At Littlefield Memorial Church, Rev. Paul Jamieson will bring the message Sunday morning and Edward Jamieson will sing. Junior church will meet at 10.30. Miss Olive Bragg, leader and Bible School at 11.45. In the evening the pastor will preach, subject, "The Evidence of God's Love." Miss Olive Bragg and Mrs. Lillian Lord will render a musical selection.

The subject of the sermon at the First Baptist Church on Sunday morning will be "Fellow-Workers." Special music by the choir. The church school will meet at noon. The Christian Endeavorers will have their meeting at 6.15. Gladys Egan will be the leader, and "Other Gods" will be the topic. People's evening service at 7.30 will open with the prelude and "big sing." Music will be furnished by the choir, and Mr. MacDonald will speak on the subject, "How the Oldest Son Was Saved." The happy prayer and praise meeting comes on Tuesday evening at 7.30.

At Pratt Memorial M. E. Church, Rev. H. H. Marr, pastor, services for Sunday are Sunday School at 10 o'clock; morning service at 11, with sermon by the pastor, subject "The Manner of God's Love." The music will include a solo, "Fear Ye Not O Israel" by Dudley Buck, sung by Mrs. Marianne Bullard. At the Epworth League service at 6 o'clock, leader, Charles Ellis, the subject will be "Jesus The Pioneer of Life." Evening service at 7.15, with a short sermon by the pastor, "Doing The Right As We Know It." Group singing at this service will be in charge of Parker Worrey assisted by the orchestra. Prayer service Tuesday evening at 7.15.

THE DIGEST'S POLL

The first scattered returns in the Presidential poll being conducted by "The Literary Digest" were made public recently, revealing a slight advantage for Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt over President Hoover. The figures were as follows:

SAVE 1/4 YOUR FUEL BILL

Hundreds of owners of Glenwood Furnaces throughout Knox County will testify that a Glenwood Furnace will save one-quarter the fuel cost for a season's use.

The cost of a Glenwood Furnace is now lower than any time during the past twenty years. We have every size in stock. We give you a price completely installed by expert Glenwood workmen.

Terms can be arranged so you can buy and take the whole year to pay. It is surprising to know the low price of a Glenwood completely installed.

You can have the single pipe style or a size furnace that carries heat to every room in the house. A Glenwood is almost a permanent investment as they wear for many years.

The Home and That Boy of Yours

By F. H. CHELEY

THE MOTHER COMPLEX

THERE are thousands of mothers who still believe their sons to be their "baby darlings" (personal property) and quite unable to function without them—and furthermore, refuse to let them try.

It is invariably these mothers who say, "My John is so queer," "a strange little fellow," "so timid and sensitive," "still so much of a child," although he is as tall as father; his voice is changing and he is already experimenting with Dad's safety razor! She persistently rationalizes her position and attitude. His helplessness brings her a satisfaction. She lives on the fact that he cannot get along without her and is content to cripple him and wreck his future usefulness, in the name of mother love.

Parents by the thousands, most intelligent folk, on every hand are guilty of this crime. It unfortunately has social sanction. Educate your sons to be real personalities. More than your domination, more than food or school, he needs emancipation—to be put on his own resources; to learn to adjust happily to a group of his kind; to make his way; to earn recognition; to be a person; to find himself in relation to a very complex and over-organized world.

Homelessness is a very hard experience for unshackled youth. It often times completely ruins a first year away at school—the price the boy pays for your possessiveness. Why not get him ready to live happily without you?

To acknowledge that he has never been away from home, or that he would die of loneliness away from you, is to acknowledge his utter dependence upon you. Have you the moral courage to cut the apron strings and give your boy a chance to become a person?

Beware if that growing adolescent boy is too "obedient" and docile, and content to do just as you say; if he has no desire to up and away and with his particular gang; if he does not resist demonstrations of affection; if he does not seek advice and assurance that "he knows better." Beware, I say, if he is too good and too helpful and too "nice." Either his development is belated or his personality smothered under a "mother complex"; for such is not normal boy life.

Many parents take pride in the fact that their children are "easy to live with" and accept the fact as a compliment to their success. Such may be the case, if so you are experiencing true, genuine happiness in living and have done a good job; but on the other hand, too peaceful, too perfectly conformed, too entirely controlled children also may be too easy to live with because they are in utter bondage to your strong personality and are slaves instead of freedmen.

Oct. 13—State Advisory Board of the D. A. R. meets at Rockland.

WEATHER
Last night's southerly wind was heavy enough to pass for the line storm, ripping off branches and leaves and bringing down wires to put the street lights out of commission. Yesterday's rain was needed after the succession of pleasant days since September came in, and the stores of the clouds are not yet exhausted—as witness this morning's showers, though in the intervals between the sun shows signs of emerging. Fair is predicted for tomorrow. Yesterday noon temperature was 64, this morning at 8 o'clock 61; wind northwest.

Miss Margaret Bowler is employed as head waitress at Penobscot Grill.

Miss Edith Riley has entered Knox County Hospital Training School for Nurses.

Miss Sadie Marcus has returned from attendance at the Boston Furniture Show.

Percy Dinsmore is again on duty at Central Fire Station, fully recovered from a gripe attack.

A surprise is said to be in store for the Lions next Wednesday noon, but the nature of it is not revealed.

Wendell Chaples who has been residing at 17 Warren street, has moved to Lake avenue at The Highlands.

William R. Lufkin is fitting up quarters over the old Courier-Gazette office for temporary occupancy.

Mrs. Alice Robbins has leased her residence at 20 Maple street for the school year and has taken rooms with Mrs. Lena Merrill at 309 Broadway.

The Past Grands and Past Nobles Grands meet in Round Pond next Wednesday night, supper to be served on the arrival of the members.

Lewiston Democrats are going to hold a big celebration next Tuesday night over the election of their fellowtownsman, Louis J. Brann, as governor.

The Sunshine Society will meet at the club room 447 Main street Monday afternoon. There is business of importance and a good attendance is necessary.

Mrs. O. G. Cuddy of New Haven sends through the paper her thanks to the judges of the recent hospital limerick contest for their award to her as the first prize winner.

The new Union High School building which attracts so much admiring attention, will be ready for occupancy Oct. 3. Meantime the pupils are having considerably more than three days of grace.

The Baptist Men's League will open a new season the third Thursday of next month. Members should bear in mind that the meetings are now held on Thursdays instead of Wednesdays, so as not to conflict with circle nights.

Attractions at Strand Theatre next week are: "The First Year," with Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrell, Monday and Tuesday; Jackie Cooper in "Divorce in Family" Wednesday and Thursday; "Tom Brown of Culver," with Tom Brown himself, Friday and Saturday.

The Forty Club is engaged in the commendable undertaking of raising money for Christmas charity, in order that the work may be continued as in former years. To this end is being given the motion picture entertainment at Park Theatre tomorrow night. The first picture will be shown at 8 o'clock, and an excellent program will be offered.

STATE HANDICAP GOLF

The State Open Amateur Golf Handicap tournament will be held today at the Rockland Country Club links. There is a large entry and most of the local golfers plan to be present. The course is in excellent condition. The local pro, George Jones and Edward Bernard, State handicapper official of Portland, will run the match.

The choir of St. Peter's Episcopal Church has a public supper tonight from 5 to 7 in the Undercroft.

The Auxiliary of Sons of Union Veterans meets Wednesday evening, with 6 o'clock supper in charge of Mrs. Velma Marsh and Mrs. John Thomas.

In the freshman class at University of Maine will be these Rockland students: Ruth Perry, Graham Hills, Francis McAlary, Lucien Green, Jr. and Richard Knowlton.

The Knox Memorial Association voted to extend an invitation to members of the D.A.R. State Advisory Board, meeting at Rockland, Oct. 13, to hold their afternoon session at Montpelier, following luncheon at the Congregational vestry.

Local fans who expect to back the Yankees in the approaching World Series are anxious to see what kind of a showing Babe Ruth will make when he gets back into the game against the Athletics next Wednesday. It is quite evident that the Cubs will not lack supporters in either event.

Compensation at the rate of $18 a week until not more than $4000 has been paid, was awarded by the Industrial Accident Commission yesterday to Mrs. Laura A. Spalding whose husband, Andrew W. Spalding, was killed by an airplane propeller while he was working for the Curtiss Wright Flying Service at Rockland.

When Patrolman Charles H. Emery visited his daughter at the Foster farm, Ash Point, the other day, he visited the orchard to admire a tree heavily laden with snow apples. One branch in particular attracted his attention for in addition to being so heavy with apples that it sagged, one and was full of blossoms such as you have a right to expect in June. Charlie brought along a specimen for inspection by the September apple blossom editor.

So Tom Sawyer, the former Rockland boxer, is to become a manager. Here is what the Boston Post says about him: "Tom Sawyer, now of Westboro, the former Lewiston welter and middleweight star, after a long absence from the ring, will get back to the wars. It will be as a manager, however, and not a fighter. Tom has taken under his wing Johnny Aylmer of Hyannis, 158 pounds, a 16-year-old amateur, who is now in the amateurs. Later on Sawyer plans to start the boy in the 'pros'."

These have been anything but prosperous times for the motion picture industry. A New York dispatch has this to say concerning the Paramount-Public, which has two houses in this city: "The Paramount Public Corp. today estimated for the quarter ended July 2 a net operating loss of $5,900,000. There was a profit of $535,000 from the purchase of bonds for the sinking fund. In addition, the company had special write-offs of about $1,700,000, making a total charge against earned surplus for the period of about $7,690,000."

The Pine Tree Outboard Club is making plans for four classes of outboard racing at Lake Megunticook Sunday, Sept. 25, at 2 p. m. Some good prizes have been donated by the Camden merchants and there is every indication of some hotly contested heats. This will be the last race of the season in Maine. There will be a Lockwood Ace Class special, classes "A," "B" and "Free-For-All." The recent improvements to the highway along the Turnpike drive insures a fine view of the entire course. A collection will be taken to help in the winter activities of the club.

When you have a Victor radio or radiola serviced by the Maine Music Store it is done right and no time lost looking for the trouble—no excessive charge. A good thing to think of when buying a new radio—adv.

AWAY THEY GO!

Ten Boys and Girls To Represent Knox and Lincoln At Springfield Exposition

Ten boys and girls from Knox and Lincoln agricultural and home-making clubs were included in the list of 140 representatives of the 4-H Clubs in Maine who left Portland this morning on the Maine State Chamber of Commerce prize trip to Springfield, Mass., for a week's training encampment at the Eastern States Exposition. They are: Clifton Meservey, Robert C. Farris, Raymond Rhodes, Annie Rhodes, Union; Gertrude Hardy, Hope; Chesley Cripps, Simon; Robert W. Graffam, Hazel Hall, Alana; Falena Hilton, North Whitefield; Charlotte Bragdon, Damascott.

Toward the $3500 expenses of this trip, 202 Maine Granges subscribed a total of $926. The Granges in Knox and Lincoln Counties subscribing were Knox Pomona, Limerock Valley, Pomona, Hope, Penobscot View of Rockport, Seven-Tree of Union, Pioneer of East Union, Megunticook of Camden, Hutton Hill of Wiscasset, Jefferson of North Newcastle, Garrison Hill of Sheepscot, Arlington of North Whitefield and Willow of Jefferson.

The Rotary Club of Camden was also included in the list of subscribing service clubs.

THE THRIFT SHOP
Mrs. Maude Blodgett New Chairman—Official Opening Will Be Oct. 15

The Thrift Shop committee met yesterday afternoon, when the resignations of Miss Gertrude Smith, former general chairman, and Mrs. Alice Spar, secretary, were accepted. These vacancies will be filled by Mrs. Maude Blodgett, general chairman and Mrs. Helen Lamb, secretary.

Quarters will be selected later. The shop will be open Oct. 13 and 14 at 10 a. m. to receive clothing and furniture, the official opening to be Oct. 15 from 10 to 12 and 2 to 5 and thereafter every Tuesday from 2 to 5 and Saturday 10 to 12 and 2 to 5.

It is hoped that churches and other organizations will cooperate in this worthy undertaking by eliminating rummage sales. The shop will be conducted on lines similar to those adopted last year. Articles to be furnished free will be done so only on requisition from the city matron.

CAMDEN
Dr. Charles D. Filiebrown, 70, retired nose and throat specialist, who practised in Boston more than 30 years, died suddenly of heart disease at his home, Chestnut Hill, Camden yesterday. He had been in poor health for several years. Funeral services will be held Monday at 2 p. m. daylight, at his home, with Rev. Ralph H. Hayden, pastor of St. Thomas' Episcopal Church here, officiating. Burial will be in Mountain street cemetery.

Col. and Mrs. F. A. Blunt of Preston, Cuba, have been recent guests of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Atkins.

Mrs. Lena Hatch will entertain the Woman's Foreign Missionary Society Tuesday at 230.

Miss Grace Drake has closed her cottage at Bayside and returned to her home in Camden. She has been entertaining during the summer her sister Mrs. Frank Drake of this place and her aunt Mrs. Julia Jordan of Wellesley, Mass.

Miss Vivian Cassens, clerk in W. O. Hall's store, is on a vacation of two weeks.

Malden Cliff Rebekah Lodge will hold a card party at I.O.O.F. hall next Friday evening for the benefit of the Camden Relief Association. Reservations may be made by calling Mrs. Blanche Fuller, noble grand.

John R. Durrell, submaster of Rockland High School, has moved into the Silsby apartments on Summer street.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Powell of South Hope have bought the Lydia Merrill house adjoining the Sweet Shop, and it will be occupied by Clarence Robbins.

All members of the Knox County Bowling League are requested to meet at the Recreation Bowling Alleys Monday night at 7 o'clock. If there are any more teams to be entered it can be done at this meeting. Election of officers, League schedules, etc., are in order. Manager Fitzgerald has planned several new features and has redecorated the entire walls of the alleys. All interested in bowling this year should make it a point to be present.

A line gale on the 24-hour basis, swept over Rockland last night, and residents awoke to find the ground strewn with wreckage from trees and shrubs. Rain fell in enormous quantities, and thunder and lightning kept nervous folks awake. A street had a scare of its own at 9 o'clock when a live wire fell into the street, with the usual spectacular effect. This incident was of direct interest to the writer of this item who had passed over the spot just two minutes earlier.

Writing from Cheyenne, Wyo., Cyrus W. Hills, the Rockland boy who is now district manager for Wyoming of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of New York, says: "We are having the most delightful part of our whole year just at this time and it is very beautiful, especially in the mountains. I was in Denver last week and on the way home found the scenery a riot of color with the turning leaves. The harvest time is on; the wheat and corn and potatoes seem to be doing well. Next comes the sugar beets, and then all will be ready for winter."

Something new in State Sunday School conventions is being planned for this fall by the Maine Council of Religious Education. Instead of the usual three-day session of the council held in one central point in the State in October, a series of four regional conventions are being held in four widely separated areas, in order to reach a larger number of workers with inspiration and help for their tasks. Following the policy inaugurated in New Hampshire and tried successfully in a number of other states, the education committee has planned for four sessions to be held at Mars Hill, Oct. 11, Belfast Oct. 12, Livermore Falls Oct. 13, Kennebunk Oct. 14. Thus the state from Aroostook to York will have opportunity to meet and counsel with the leaders from out of the state and within the state who will be of the program. The active work being carried on in Knox County will insure attendance from this section.

Visitors to the private kindergarten school conducted by Mrs. Mildred Brewster at the corner of Union and Summer streets (in the former Dr. Wagsott office) are charmed with the clever work being done in this line. The school, held from 9 to 12, brings together children ranging from 2 to 6 who through games, stories, hand work and music are taught co-ordination between brain and hands, developing the social phase and teaching the youngsters to be self reliant. Children enrolled at present are Priscilla Anderson, Barbara Grover, Robert MacWilliams, David Hoch, Bruce Strickland, Gloria Ristano, Florence Davis, Carol Ann Wolcott, Clifford and Diane Cameron, Patricia Perry, Roger Lezan and Sherwin Porbus, Jr. From this beginning Mrs. Brewster hopes to develop a kindergarten school of importance. She has had both training and experience for the work, being a graduate of Castine Normal School where she specialized in this branch, and taking a special course in Florida, later conducting such kindergarten work in Tampa with marked success. Mrs. Brewster has to be at home with her parents who are in ill health, and in this school is happy that she can take up the work for which she trained. Visitors are always welcome.

CHALLENGE TO YOUNG PEOPLE

During the past forty years tens of thousands of young men and women of many nationalities and denominations have sought free training for Christian service at home or abroad offered by the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago. More than 2000 students enrolled in its day and evening schools last year. While for certain special courses a high school background is required, and college training desirable, yet grammar school training will admit to its general course. English is taught to any deficient in its use.

The Bible ranks first in all institute courses, but instruction is furnished in such subjects as Sunday school administration, daily vacation bible school, gospel music, public speaking, home economics, hygiene, and manual training. In special courses are offered theology, homiletics, church history, apologetics, hebrew, yiddish, greek, and medical subjects for foreign mission work.

There are three terms a year—fall, winter and summer—but students may enter at any time. An illustrated catalogue will be mailed on request. Address, 153 Institute Place, Chicago Avenue Station, Chicago, Ill.

STORMING THE HEIGHTS

Maine's Embattled Farmers At Castine During the Revolution—By Judge E. K. Gould

FOREWORD.

The "Expedition to the Penobscot," as the American attack on Castine is officially designated, has always been a "sore spot" in American Revolutionary history, to be passed over lightly with brief reference or without any reference whatever. The reason for this was that it is a crushing American defeat. The expedition was doomed to fail before it started. Instead of the 1500 men called for by the Massachusetts authorities, but a scant 900 reported for duty. To make success certain 2000 men should have been provided in the land force.

However, no greater gallantry was shown in any battle of the Revolution than that displayed in the joint army and navy attack on the Heights along the western shore of the Castine peninsula, which resulted in their being carried. Even now the place of attack is a tangled wilderness almost inaccessible with precipitous banks that require the agility of youth to climb. A wooden sign marks the place of ascent of Colonel McCobb's Regiment. Deep in the wilderness is another tablet of wood which indicates the place of sepulchre of the gallant officers and men who perished in this ill-fated expedition. But for the sign there is nothing on the face of the earth to denote that human beings are buried on this spot. On the contrary trees nearly two feet in diameter are growing over this burial place. The memory of these gallant heroes deserves something better than oblivion and it is the purpose of this article to render them substantial justice.

The American defeat at Castine was the severest blow received by the American Naval force during the Revolution. The trade to Canada went safe after the destruction of the American vessels, at least for the season. Massachusetts never recovered the loss of ships while the war lasted, and it was a long time before the Commonwealth was reimbursed by the General Government for the enormous expense for those times of fitting out the expedition.

After the defeat all thought of attacking Canada and Nova Scotia was finally abandoned, and the shipping trade from the banks of Newfoundland along the Nova Scotia coast enjoyed unusual security.

Bunker Hill was a British victory. So was Castine. But American valor shines with undying luster through the murky clouds of defeat in both battles.

"Lord God of Hosts Be With Us Yet,
Lest We Forget—Lest We Forget."

EDWARD K. GOULD

(THIRD INSTALLMENT)

An examination of their arms and accoutrements disclosed that the troops were very poorly equipped, most of them had arms, but many of the pieces were out of repair, and there was very little ammunition. Most of the officers as well as the men were unacquainted with military manoeuvres, and even the manual exercise.

Notwithstanding all these deficiencies of numbers, equipment and quality of men, General Lovell concluded to go on to Penobscot, first giving the militia brigadiers intelligence of the deficiency, and requesting them to complete the number ordered drafted by the General Court. As soon as assembled, the recruits were to be sent forward in transports, or in any other way more expeditious.

This force was altogether inadequate to accomplish what was expected of it.

They were simply an armed mob, led by inexperienced officers, without the semblance of discipline, or the power of cohesion when required to act together as a military body. They were, however, a spirited body of men and were inspired by the heroic example of their fathers, who had been at the siege and capture of Louisbourg thirty years before.

On Saturday, July 23, 1779, the fleet set sail for the Penobscot Bay and at 10 o'clock that night, the vessels anchored to the north of North Haven, and boats were sent ashore that brought off three of the inhabitants, one by the name of Waterman, (probably Joseph), who told of the incomplete condition of the Fort at Castine, and that the British fleet consisted of but one 20-gun vessel and two sloops of war. They did not know whether cannon had been mounted, but estimated the number of British soldiers as 700 or 800. It looked like an easy victory for the Americans.

On July 24, the American fleet arrived at Castine and saw the enemy's naval force of three small craft moored with springs across the entrance of the harbor, while their works on shore appeared weak, judging from their fire.

In fact the Fort at this time was ill prepared to resist an enemy. The British commander had been warned of the approach of the expedition four days before, and he changed his intention of making a regularly constructed fortress and prepared in a more expeditious manner to erect one suitable for the present emergency.

The northerly side was but four feet high and the easterly and westerly ends were laid up sloping and resembled, somewhat, a stone wall. From the back side to the front there was simply a depression and the ground was not broken. The ditch was in no part over three feet high, and so low were the walls that a soldier was heard to say that he "could jump over them with a musket in each hand."

Platforms had not been laid or any cannon mounted. There was one 6-gun battery at Dyce Point, and a small one begun somewhere on Cape Rozier. Much of the main fort was a log fortification "as high as the shin," as an American soldier described it.

Brigadier-General MacLean, the British commander at Castine, for some years had held high rank in the Portuguese service, and was an officer of rare merit and experience. His troops were kept vigorously at work by night and day, but platforms were not laid or artillery mounted until after the American fleet appeared. One hundred of the inhabitants, some voluntarily and others against their will, in three days cleared the land of all the wood in front of the Fort, and 180 men were also sent on shore from the British men-of-war to assist in preparing the defenses. A messenger was also dispatched to Halifax for aid. The British Naval force at Castine then consisted only of the sloops Albany, North and Nautilus, which were moored in close line of battle across the entrance of Castine harbor.

The American reconnaissance just prior to their assault of the Heights, July 28th, at seven o'clock in the morning, developed that the enemy had erected their main fort from which they fired in barbette (from the top of the walls) and had mounted two cannon, the one a 12 and the other a 6-pounder. Only the heads of men with musketry could be discovered in the battery.

It appeared that the enemy had closed their lines and began chevaux-de-frise work upon the rampart.

It can readily be seen that the fort now so wonderfully preserved at Castine, with its well-constructed ramparts and bastions, ditch and magazine, is not the fort which was attacked by General Lovell in 1779.

This earthwork is of later construction, probably of the 1814 period, when the British again occupied Castine, and put time, labor and military skill into the construction or completion of Fort George, as it is now called. That their work was well done is indicated by the fact that it has endured the ravages of time for 118 years.

At three o'clock p. m., of the twenty-fifth, the American fleet made its appearance and a brisk cannonade was kept up for about two hours. The Americans also made an attempt to land but without success owing to the high wind. The next day, July 26th, the British sloops moved farther up into the harbor, and another cannonading took place lasting two hours and a quarter, but with slight damage to either side. Again the Americans attempted to make a landing upon the Point, but were repulsed. At six p. m. they made a landing on Nautilus island with two hundred men and captured a battery of 4-pounders.

General Lovell was now determined to effect a lodgment on the Peninsula, and with the co-operation of the fleet, this was brilliantly and gallantly accomplished on the morning of July 28th, 1779.

OBJECTS TO THE LAW

Believes It Works Injustice To Those Classes That Labor

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

In this country the workers are supposed to enjoy certain rights and privileges. According to the Constitution we are supposed to have among other things, free speech, free press, free assembly and the right to vote according to our own conscience. In so-called good times, when the workers are employed fairly good, so they can be depended on as being satisfied with things as they are, those in power will perhaps permit us to enjoy these things to a certain degree, because they know it is not dangerous just then; but in times of what is known as a depression, when the workers are unemployed by wholesale, starving, and becoming more and more radicalized, so they can no longer be depended on to vote the old party ticket, then what happens? We have a fresh example right before us from the State of Maine of what the workers can expect in such a case.

I am referring to the 100-year-old law they have dug up and put into service, barring anyone from voting who has received aid from the town or city. It must be obvious to any fair minded person that such a law is a class law of the very rankest kind, as only poor unemployed workers can be expected to ask for relief.

We have in this country today about 15,000,000 unemployed and the number constantly growing. Now, if such laws should be in effect in the rest of the states also, most of the workers would be disfranchised, and pretty soon only the Fords, Morgans and the Rockefeller's left to do the voting. First the workers are separated from their jobs, they are denied a livelihood, in many cases thrown on the street because unable to pay the rent, then when they are forced to go to the town to ask for relief in order to live, the State steps in and says: "Now you are a pauper, now you cannot vote." This is democracy at work, adding injury to injury, with insults for good measure, and then take away our only means of protest. It is high time that the workers repudiate those parties who have nothing to offer but unemployment, misery and insults and take the government in their own hands for their own good. Hans Nelson

OUR BOOK CORNER

Not many days ago the junior member of "Williamson and Williamson" authors had her first book published and began to climb the literary heights her husband had already achieved. About seven years ago Sarah Storer Smith of Bristol probably had little idea that she would travel the world over and become an author. But at that time she had no idea that William Williamson, author and traveler, was coming to Maine in search of material for a new novel. He found the material and made it into the widely read "Hunky," and also found Sarah Storer Smith and made her his wife.

Since their marriage and a year spent at Cape Elizabeth, they have wandered about much of the globe, living in Mexico, Alaska, Europe, various parts of America and Canada. At present they are in Newfoundland. A little more than a year ago they went to the Tyrol where Mr. Williamson laid the background for a sequel to "Hunky." There he wrote "In Krusack's House" and persuaded his wife to consider writing. She wrote "The Glacier Mystery," a story of the Tyrol for boys and girls, in which the great families of the stage are mingled with the flavor of a foreign country. Mrs. Williamson writes as S. S. Smith. The Williamsons expect to be in Portland the latter part of the month.

If you have not read "Broome Stages," by Clemence Dane, you should. However, do not prepare to make it a reading at one sitting, for the book contains 703 pages. The great families of the stage are the last dynasties that exercise the divine right, says the author in this history of Broomes who were despots of the English stage for seven generations, or from that first Richard Broome who ate fairly bread on a Devon hillside and fell through a barn roof into "Midsummer Night's Dream," in 1715, to Richard Broome of the silver screen, the great synthetic lover of England and America, in the present year. It is marvelously written in such a way that one must read every word. All through the story are sprinkled sayings that are apt to stick in the mind. For example "When youth leaves a room, it leaves a hush in which older people hear their own souls rattle as they move."

Harper News (of forthcoming publications) contains tempting hints of new books for fall reading. Sept. 28 Harper & Brothers will publish "The More I See Of Men," edited by Dr. Mabel Ulrich, in which nine of the outstanding women writers of the day tell what they think about men. The women writers and their subjects are: Man The Lover, by Isabel Paterson; Men and Women, by Margaret Calkin Banning; Men and Religion, by Rebecca West; Man's Helpmate, by Storm Jameson; Man's Moral Law, by Sylvia Townsend Warner; Man and Personal Relations, by E. M. Delafield; Man the Master; An Illusion, by Mary Borden; Man as Pleasure-Seeker, by Susan Ertz; Rough Notes on Men, by G. B. Stern.

Also on Sept. 28 will come Albert Payson Terhune's new book "The Son of God," which is dedicated to the memory of his father, the late Rev. Edward Payson Terhune. Mr. Terhune's father and mother, known to the public as Marion Harland, the novelist, built the house at Sunnybank where Mr. Terhune now lives, and which has become famous throughout the world to readers of Albert Payson Terhune stories. Mr. Terhune describes his father as "a clergyman who was also a man," and adds: "His religious faith was as simple as a child's. So was my mother's. This simple and utter faith, a faith past mere argument—is the richest of their many heritages to me."

Other September publications include: Ma Cinderella by Harold Bell Wright; The Waverly Pageant, Hugh Walpole; Marvels of Modern Chemistry, Beverly L. Clarke; Poison in Jest, by John Dickson Carr; Double Death by Freeman Willis Crofts; and Poems for Enjoyment, by Elias Lieberman.

For more than a quarter of a century Harold Bell Wright has been a writer of best-sellers. Audited records show that an average of 737,443 copies were sold of his first 12 novels, a total of 9,849,316. Of "The Shepherd of the Hills" and "The Winning of Barbara Worth," more than a million and a half copies each have been sold. Boston always buys more copies of Wright's novels than does New York.

Louis Bromfield has nearly completed a new novel which should be ready for publication early in 1933. This will be under Harper & Brothers imprint.

"Literature is neither a pastime nor, as the jargon of today goes, an escape. Literature is meat and drink. It is full of calories and vitamins. It is a tonic and a stimulant. Even the sick it is not an opiate, but oxygen and blood-transfusion, that precious life blood of master spirits of which Milton speaks. More people have been restored to health by books than have been poisoned by them."

Tenant's Harbor

Arnold Sturke, nephew of Capt. and Mrs. Dudley returned home to Vinalhaven last Saturday. Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Sabin and son Elmer and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Holmes were guests at the light Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Everett Watts and son were at the light calling Sunday. Miss Lillian McCarter was at her home in Cushing Sunday, returning to the lighthouse Monday.

Keeper Dudley was in Rockland Thursday of last week on business.

Matinicus Rock

Another week has gone by and with it plenty of wind and high sea. Mr. Morong the machinist, arrived back at station, after spending Labor Day with his family.

Floyd Singer, who is additional keeper, and his wife are on the station, staying with keeper and Mrs. Powers. They enjoy many a good game of cards, 63, and whist. Mr. Morong while at home picked some nice string beans from his garden, and brought them to Mrs. Powers. It looks like he is a farmer on the side. Mrs. Morong sent Mrs. Powers a lovely set of china dishes which was a surprise to her and she was delighted with them.

Hilda Thompson of Matinicus spent the past week at the lighthouse, guest of Rachel Robinson.

Mr. Young, postmaster of Matinicus, is in poor health. We hope he soon will be improved and able to be around again.

St. Croix River

Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Scoville were Labor Day weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Small.

Schools opened in Calais Sept. 6. Miss Lucy Kennison has the position as teacher of the Red Beach school.

A party of six girls equipped with blankets, victrola, and lunch camped out on the south end of the island recently. The evening was pleasant, but near dawn the fog settled over the land making it quite damp, so the campers decided to leave earlier than planned. The wet weather had short circuited their outboard motor and they were unable to start it, so Mr. Small towed them over to the cottage just below the lighthouse.

Misses Mary and Elizabeth Jones and Miss Melva Frazier invited Mrs. Small to a corn-roast on the beach below the lighthouse. A roaring fire with plenty of good hot coals to roast the corn was enjoyed by all.

Capt. Loring Myers of Lubec, retired lighthouse keeper was Sunday guest of Dr. Noel Godfrey at Red Beach. Dr. Godfrey has purchased a cottage lot across from the lighthouse and plans to build a cottage next spring. He has been occupying one of Miss Kate Lane's cottages for the summer but will soon return to his duties at New York University.

For two days a north-north east gale raged but no damages reported. Mrs. Mabel Scoville who has been visiting her daughter Mrs. Small, returned to her home in Lubec Monday. She was very sorry not to have been at home when her daughter Mrs. Allen of Doubting Point Light was an overnight guest at Lubec.

Four factories at Lubec are in operation and although the wages are low the people are more encouraged at the prospect of a good fall's work. For hour labor the pay ranges from 15 to 20 cents, the average being 17 1/2 cents; for packing the sardines, 10 cents a case. In 1919 and 1920 one received 40 and 45 cents an hour and 40 cents a case for packing. However at that time flour was around $18 a barrel, whereas now it is as low as $4.50.

The city of Eastport is packing mackerel to be used to feed the poor this winter.

Arthur Cook and Miss Evadne Cook spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. Small.

Services have started again at the Red Beach Church.

Dice Head

It is beginning to look lonesome around Dice Head as the summer visitors are leaving for their winter homes. There are a few that stay into October but those that have children have to go so that the children can go to school. The Lions Club seems to be holding its own and doing lots of good in the community.

The Castine schools commenced

this week and by the crowds that have visited the station from the Normal School there must be quite a good attendance.

Many steamers are passing by loaded with pulp wood.

It looks hard for working people here this winter. The sardine factory has been closed all summer, and no work to look forward to this winter.

Cape Neddick

Yes, Charlie was right—Mr. and Mrs. William Brown of Auburn did call here and brought their friends Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Blaisdell of Auburn with them, and it was a most enjoyable forenoon. There were guests here at the time so there was no loss for subjects to talk about. Since then the Colemans have received a large box of preserving pears from Mr. Blaisdell, and will have pleasant recollections of their visit this winter when eating the pears.

The eclipse was wonderful seen from this section. The keeper and his wife with Miss Edith Nickerson of Boston and Harrison A. Sayre of Union College, Schenectady, N. Y., viewed the eclipse through the red plate glass of the lower windows. There were a great many on the island and on the point to observe the great event. The record of visitors for the summer was made, the keeper taking 40 through the light on that day. There were 470 visitors registered for the month of August and 747 to date for the year.

Over Labor Day guests at the station were Mr. and Mrs. Irwin M. McIntire, Miss Grace M. McIntire, Andrus L. Coleman and Mr. and Mrs. William J. Renaud and daughter Fay Marie, all of Bath, Miss Rosetta M. Coleman of Gardiner and Miss Edith L. Nickerson of Boston. At this writing the keeper is getting ready to go on his annual vacation. So Charlie get the latching out for we are coming.

Portland Breakwater

Mr. and Mrs. H. F. Marr and daughter Beatrice motored to Rockland one day last week for their daughter Doris who has been on a visit with Mrs. Ida Clayer of Vinalhaven. Mrs. Clayer returned with them.

Mrs. P. L. Marr spent the weekend of Sept. 11 with her daughter, Mrs. H. W. Noyes of 39 Beacon street, Portland.

Mr. and Mrs. P. L. Marr motored to Boothbay Harbor and Southport over Labor Day. They had a thick passage home on the night of Sept. 5.

Mrs. Howard Noyes of 41 Beacon street, Portland, accompanied Mrs. Nellie Noyes on her trip to Bridgeport, Conn., over Labor Day to bring Alton Noyes back for school.

Port Point

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence S. Mitchell and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Kay of Fairbairn, N. J., visited Keeper Mitchell and family recently. Other house guests the past three weeks were Mr. and Mrs. Alvah J. Robinson and daughter Rachel formerly of Harrington, now stationed at Matinicus; Mrs. Alva B. Strout and son Gerald of Calais. The Robinsons and Mitchell's enjoyed a motor trip to Bar Harbor and up the Cadillac Mountain drive. A social call was made at Dice Head Light, Castine, with Keeper and Mrs. V. L. King.

Capt. and Mrs. Eugene Tinker of Sunset Lodge, Camden, and party of friends from Belmont called at the light last Sunday. Ex-keeper Edward Farren with Mrs. Farren called at the light recently.

Keeper Mitchell was in Bangor Tuesday on business.

Etta Marie Mitchell opened her school at Searport Sept. 6.

Julius Klein, assistant secretary of the Department of Commerce visited this station in August.

A new hot water heater has been furnished here to replace old one now in dwelling.

Minot Brigham of Boston, Miss Grace V. Church of Stockton Springs and Florian Curtis of Searport were guests of Miss Mitchell at the light one evening last week.

Mr. and Mrs. F. F. Munroe, daughters Virginia and Bunney and Miss Delta Harvey returned to Waban, Mass. last week after a pleasant summer spent at the Webster cottages.

The cottages at Port Point are closed for the season. The Mitchells miss their summer neighbors and wish they might enjoy these lovely fall days here.

Keeper Woodward of Manana Fog Signal Station inquired about gardens in a recent letter. Here's saying that we have a wonderful garden this year, the best ever—raising our winter's supply of vegetables with the exception of cabbage. Large quantities of peas, beans, Swiss chard and beet greens, also beet and tomato pickles are canned and stored in the cellar for winter consumption.

In the pasture can be seen three head of cattle grazing. This is our "farm" news. Can you beat it?

Portland Head

Thayer Sterling and family returned home Monday from an enjoyable vacation with one regret it ended too quickly.

Mackler struck off here Wednesday and seiners got over 80,000 small ones.

Mrs. Thayer Sterling entertained friends from Portland Tuesday evening.

Armand Comeau completed his duties as substitute Monday and has gone to Connecticut where he has employment.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell, Falmouth Gardens, with a party of friends were among Sunday callers.

Mrs. Charles Sterling, daughter Miss Elizabeth Sterling, Mrs. Fred Sterling and baby Nancy of Peak's Island called on Mrs. Thayer Sterling Thursday.

Mrs. Lillian Wellington, Miss Ida Symms, Mrs. Ruth Wellington, son Parker and Miss Upham of West Medford, Mass., called on F. O. Hill and family Sunday.

Mrs. F. O. Hill, Willard fruit, and Albert Martin were riding Monday afternoon. They started with no definite plan in view and finally arrived at Cape Porpoise.

Dr. Clarence Holt and son of Portland came to the station Thursday of last week. They brought along corn and frankfurts for a real picnic on the rocks. Day had turned to evening when they arrived, rather cool outside and they found the kitchen fire a more cheerful place to cook the meal and picnicked in Hill's dining room instead of on the rocks.

Gentlemen's night at The Good Timers Club last Wednesday evening with Mrs. Marian Soule hostess.

Covers were laid for 15. Those present were Mrs. Grace Dow, son Richard, Mrs. Martha Sterling, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Thomas, Mr. and Mrs. George Mitchell, Mr. and Mrs. James Robertson, son Donald and granddaughter Jeannette, Mr. and Mrs. F. O. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. George Soule. The next regular meeting will be with Mrs. Annie Thomas.

Sequin

Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Urquhart returned to the station Tuesday of last week. They attended the celebration at Jonesport Sept. 3 and reported it as being a great success.

The lighthouse tender Flex called at the station with coal last week.

While digging potatoes recently Keeper Urquhart found one which weighed 2 1/2 pounds. This is only one specimen from the gardens on Sequin.

Keeper Urquhart and First Assistant Connors rescued a yacht's tender Friday of last week. Mr. Connors sighted the boat on the eastern end of the island and looking through the spy-glass could see the oars tied inside. The Coast Guard at Popham was called and responded but by the time they got out there the boat had drifted to the southern end of the island. Watching the boat from the Coast Guard the keepers knew they would not get it, so they took the station boat and went after it. They had rather a rough trip as there was a big sea all that day. They pulled the boat up on the slip. The name Calypso is on it.

Heron Neck

Many mackerel catchers have been busy in the vicinity of the light, reporting very good catches. Keeper Bennett has his supply salted for winter use.

Mr. and Mrs. George Gray and daughter Carrie were recent callers at the station. Visitors here are always very welcome.

APPLETON

September election is over. Some may be disappointed, but that is expected in politics. Everyone is busy now harvesting and getting ready for winter. The farmers are taking their sweet corn to Union factory, rushing as fast as possible with field workers and trucks.

G. C. Rolerson of Auburn was a recent visitor of friends in Appleton. "Cleve" still wears his cheerful smile and has a hello, handclasp and a good word for everybody.

Several changes in residence have been made. Annie Ripley has moved to the former Charles Sleeper place, now owned by Charles Graham. Jennie Waterman has moved to the V. K. Keene place, now owned by Clarence Ames.

These are wonderful September days, a warm haze on hill-top and valley, fruit on vine and tree, the harvest ready for the reaper; the put-put of the motor boat, and honk of the musical auto horn, all blending so harmoniously, that we think of the old song "Summer, sweet goodbye," an Indian summer.

Fairs are under way now. The correspondent has heard from friends who will attend the Eastern States Exposition at Springfield, who also write, "How I wish I could be with you for the home fair, the old North Knox." That bids fair to be a large affair this year, and here's hoping it will be fair in weather, with a good bill of fare after our fare is paid onto the grounds. Fair all around.

A. C. Cross, a former pastor of this place, filled the pulpit at Branch Mills last Sunday evening.

Where shall America turn?

"THERE'S NO PLACE LIKE HOME"

by

HENRY T. EWALD, Pres. Campbell-Ewald Company

Men look at the weakened structure of business in "our poor little rich country" and wonder what industry can supply the stimulus for recovery.

Perhaps, if we turn our eyes away from brooding factories, stores and office buildings to the 30,000,000 homes of the nation, we shall find the answer to some of our problems "right in our own back-yards." For America has travelled a curious circle away from home and back again during a single generation.

Not so long ago, when we said "There's no place like home," we spoke and thought of the beauty, comfort and family ties of that dearest place on earth. Then came "prosperity"—and with it a gradual "flight from home."

Father, when he didn't "stay at the club," found himself returning more and more frequently to a household from which other members had flown. Almost imperceptibly the old familiar saying took on a new meaning. It became literally true—There was no place like home. The deeper significance of that word disappeared from the consciousness of tens of thousands of families.

Then came depression. And now the circle of our wanderings is completed.

Somewhat reluctantly at first—but with a growing feeling of relief, tranquillity and enjoyment—the American family has come back home. Once more they are saying, "There's no place like home," and genuinely meaning it. But—are they going to stay?

It is up to individual fathers and mothers on the one hand—and the great forces of the building industry on the other—to make American homes more livable—to realize that the home of 1900 will no longer suffice for the family of 1932—to modernize the home by installing some of the wonderful comforts of this new day. For our American homes are by no means as modern as we like to think.

Less than 22% of rural and village homes, for example, have bathtubs—and, surprising as it may seem, only 68% of city homes can boast this common necessity.

Approximately 85% of homes in most communities are urgently in need of painting, decorating, repairing or alterations.

Less than 20% of the wired homes of the United States enjoy the comfort and utility of iceless refrigeration.

The number of oil burners in use is even smaller, for less than 4% of American homes are equipped with this modern type of heating.

As for that vital new development, Air Conditioning, scientifically-cooled homes in sweltering summer months are virtually unknown.

And yet, some say "Our American job is finished!" Who can doubt the almost universal desire for these improvements—or overlook the significance, from an economic standpoint, of the situation confronting us? In the hearts of our people the greatest revival of home interest in a generation! The most wonderful home comforts and luxuries of all time! And thirty million American homes waiting for them!

Here is opportunity—a direct challenge to the finest brains of industry—and a market holding rich rewards for those with the will and skill to supply the need.

The die-hard depressionists will ask, "Yes, but what are people going to use for money?" The answer is, America is facing depression—but America is not beggared. We have lost much—but we have not lost per capita wealth far beyond any other nation on earth—nor a payroll greater even today than all Europe combined—nor skilled man-power and industrial equipment unequalled anywhere in the world.

The real question is: Have we lost courage—initiative—ingenuity? And that is a question, not for the public, but for builders in every line. And salesmen. And advertising men, perhaps, most of all.

For the big task of the building industry today, and of all other industries seeking buyers, is to overcome Apathy with Advertising. Advertising is equal to the task. It will improve the present and make great the future for those businesses which employ it wisely. But it must be good Advertising—burrowing deep into the consciousness of the people—soundly planned, ably prepared, well directed.

The words, "Let's get busy!" must supplant "What's the use?" as a national slogan—a policy of do something must replace a policy of do nothing—at least among those who hope to hold leadership tomorrow.

America is coming back! What industry can lead the way? Where shall America turn for stimulus to recovery? Here is one suggestion: There's no place like home!
